

History of SANIBR and its branches development (Stage II, 1950-1960)

During this period, the main focus was on the development of old irrigation schemes. The Network of EECCA Water Management Organisations (NEMO) was established in 1995, and its main objective was to improve water management in the region. The NEMO was a network of water management organisations (WMOs) from the former Soviet Union, which were now independent states. The NEMO was established to provide a platform for the exchange of information and experience between WMOs, and to promote the development of water management in the region. The NEMO was a key player in the development of water management in the region, and it played a significant role in the development of SANIBR and its branches.
