

Environmental quality in the region: aspects of management
The means and methods of water management in the region are of great importance for the quality of the environment and the health of the population. The means and methods of water management in the region are of great importance for the quality of the environment and the health of the population.